Studio Announcement -

M.L. - Good morning friends. Once again we welcome you to the library radio program. First may I make one or two brief announcements. There are still some books out in circulation which were borrowed before the library closed in January. If you have lost or misplaced them won't you call and tell us that, otherwise they are overdue and should be returned at once.

Today is vocational guidance day at the Senior High School. The trend today is to fit each student for the work of his choice and not until he had had a chance to survey that work and view it through the eyes of those who already are in such work. Thomas Carlyle once said, "It is the first of all problems for a man to find out what kind of work he is to do in this universe.." These vocational guidance days are planned in order that students may meet and talk to leaders in various fields. Another phase of vocational guidance is to get the boys and girls gain practical experience in work they like to do. One high school girl likes declamatory work so well that she last Friday won first place in the tri-city forensic contest held at Menomonie for her humorous declamation. She will represent the Eau Claire High School in the district contest at the Teachers' College on Saturday. Jane Gillett will now give her declamation - "Old Junk And New Money" by Stephen Leacock.

M.L. - Today is the second birthday of WEAU.

I wonder how they will celebrate. When a man has a birthday he takes the day off, when a woman has a birthday she takes a year off - but a radio station keeps right on. May we say Happy Birthday and best wishes.

Next week we are beginning a series of programs on ~~problems~~ of youth and its problems. We have been asked to tell about ~~the-program-of~~ May Day and the Child Health and the plans for its observance right here in Eau Claire. So until this same time next week, your public library staff wishes you a good week with good books.
