

THE LIBRARY SPEAKS (March 29, 1939)

Theme Song -

Studio Announcement -

M.L. - Good morning, friends of the library. This morning I am happy to present several guests who will speak on various phases of the Eau Claire Public Library. Our first guest needs no introduction to our listeners. For she has done much to bring the best in good literature to the citizens of Eau Claire and surrounding communities. May I present Mrs. F. W. Thomas, president of the Eau Claire Public Library board.

Mrs. Thomas -

M.L. - Again our next guest needs no formal introduction. Mr. Alvin T. Stolen, superintendent of the Eau Claire Public Schools.

M.L. Our next speaker will be Mr. Francis J. Wilcox, a member of the board. Mr. Wilcox.

Mr. Wilcox -

M.L. And now I am indeed happy to present, Miss Laura M. Olsen, head librarian, who has a very, very special message for us this morning. Miss Olsen.

Miss Olsen -

M.L. ^{Thank guests for coming.} Next week, same time same station, we are to have another library program. Mr. Crawford has promised for some time that he will review a new book for us. I don't know. He may choose that most fascinating new story, Wickford Point by John P. Marquand or Wind Without Rain by Herbert Krause. It may be a new book of non-fiction by some well-known writer. So until next week, Good-bye from the Staff of the Eau Claire Public Library.

Miss Olsen says that the library is open
